Jack Topchik on "The Effects of the Espionage Spy Trial of Julius and Ethel Rosenberg on the American Jewish Community"

Ethel and Julius Rosenberg, avowed communists from New York City, were arrested in the summer of 1950, tried for conspiracy to commit espionage, found guilty by a jury in 1951, condemned to death, and executed in 1953. They left two orphaned sons, aged 10 and 7 at the time of the executions. The effect on America's Jewish community, still moving gradually into the mainstream of American life, was numbing.

THIS MONTH'S PRESENTER

Jack Topchik knew by the age of 10 that he would work for a newspaper someday. He still considers his newspaper delivery route from ages 11 to 14 to be the best job he ever had. After completing his route he sat down with a cold soda and devoured every page of his New Jersey hometown newspaper to observe and study what he still refers to as the daily miracle of print journalism.

Jack graduated from The University of Tennessee in Knoxville in June 1967 and four months later started what would begin a 40-year career at The New York Times News Service, the wire service arm of the newspaper, serving, at various times, as European editor, Latin American editor, Special Sections editor, photo editor and, yes, fashion editor. At its height, the News Service division was serving nearly 600 news publications and governments throughout the world.

MOST RECENT PRESENTATION

SEPTEMBER 23, 2019

Syl Schieber on "Healthcare USA: A Threat to Future Prosperity"

Syl's well argued presentation looked behind the current political discourse to show why health care spending is a threat to future prosperity and cost control is imperative to correct the situation.

Drug and insurance costs were cited as causing public angst, soaring insurance premiums and out-of-pocket expenses, and medical bankruptcies.

Syl brought out that with drug and insurance costs and personal spending on health accounting for less than a third of national medical spending—the lowest share in the past 60 years—it is structural inefficiencies in the US health care system that balloon overall costs, the highest of any nation as a proportion of GNP.
